The teacher mentioned that the project page should be compact, but currently, it feels a bit too compact. Additionally, I was advised to show the entire process, including research, gathering feedback, and conducting user testing. Finally, I was told that the structure is solid and can be applied to every project page.

During this feedback session, the teacher recommended that the design should be more cohesive and that I should add more evidence into Learning Outcomes 4 and 5. Additionally, I should add more information into the "about me" section. Overall, she mentioned that the design is good but requires a few improvements. Next, I will implement this feedback into my portfolio.

During this feedback session, the teacher recommended that I make each section of my design flow smoothly into the next instead of appearing as separate blocks. To achieve this, I should ensure that the backgrounds of each section blend seamlessly to create clean transitions. He also reminded me to use a consistent font throughout the design and the website. Additionally, he suggested that the "Contact Me" form could stand as a separate section. Overall, he said that the design is good but needs a few changes and upgrades. My next step will be to integrate this feedback into my design.

I spoke with my teacher about refining my project, and the feedback focused on making several adjustments. I need to replace the existing social media links with icons, adjust the oversized image by adding a blur effect and ensure it's symmetrically placed. The current dropdown menu should be changed to a larger style like Apple's, as it fits the design better. Additionally, I should work within frames to maintain the right resolution in my prototype.
